BRITISH FASCISTS.

Summary of Organisation and Policy.

The British Fascists are organised in two branches—Men's Units and Women's Units.

Cadet Units for members under 16 years of age are affiliated to each branch.

In times of peace both branches carry on propaganda, recruiting, and counter-revolutionary organisation.

Should Revolution, or a General Strike be threatened, Men's Units would form the Active Force, and the Women's Units the Auxiliary Force. Both branches are organised under County Commands, which are further sub-divided into Areas, Districts, Divisions, Companies, Troops, and finally Units of seven men or women. All are under selected Commanders, who must hold Warrants. These Warrants are liable to cancellation, without assigning any reason, by order of the Executive Committee at Headquarters.

Each branch has its Council of County Commanders, which will meet quarterly to discuss matters of policy and the more important questions.
The supreme control of both Men's and Women's Units, as well as of Finance, is vested in the Council, which has been registered as a Company, known as the British Fascisti Limited. This has ensured the recognition of its objects by the Government, and that its finances are subject to Audit.

Subject to such general indications regarding policy as the Council, in consultation with the County Commanders, may see fit to give, the management of the Organisation is entrusted to the President of the Council, assisted by a small Committee of Heads of Departments at Headquarters and of which the Vice-President and Treasurer are ex officio members.

The British Fascists have no connection with any alleged Fascist bodies acting without authority from the Council of the British Fascisti Limited.

The organisation of the British Fascists asks Britons of any age, sex, and class to volunteer for practical work, so that an effective force may be raised to combat the ever increasing menace of Communism.

It cannot be too strongly emphasised that the organisation of the British Fascists is not a swashbuckling concern, as stated in certain newspapers; nor does it bear the slightest resemblance to any terrorist or secret society.

It is not out to provoke force, but is prepared to meet force with force if necessary.

It is not a class movement. It embraces all grades of society. Nor is it concerned with any shade of party politics, its ranks being open to all who have its objects at heart and who are willing conscientiously to uphold its principles.

It is not a strike-breaking organisation, but, in the event of a General Strike designed to paralyse the country, it will most certainly co-operate whole heartedly with the Authorities in the direction of safeguarding the food supply and of assisting to maintain vital services.
British Fascists believe that there is room for a body of men and women of all classes who reject the assumption that money is the only source of power, and who are inspired by a determination to fight against class hatred, with its inevitable outcome of revolution, civil war, and misery.

True Fascists are actuated by no personal consideration. Each has one gift to contribute to the Cause—his or her life, whether in service or sacrifice.

We believe there is scope for such a driving force, independent of, yet working through the better side of all political parties. With such a conviction urging us forward, and arrayed in the presence of a common danger, we hope to see the causes leading to the present discontent discussed within our ranks by men of all grades and of all shades of opinion, each striving to solve the other’s difficulties, standing aloof from party or class prejudice, and ready for self-sacrifice, without a thought of personal reward, provided the remedy be found.

Such a battery of goodwill may fill a useful place in the great army of patriots who believe that the British Empire has an essential part to play towards building up a nobler civilisation in this century.

BRITISH FASCISTS.

The Union Jack and Rulers of Your Own Race OR
The Red Flag and Alien Domination.
Which will YOU serve?

This is a question which every Briton must ask himself or herself in all seriousness at the present time.

Very powerful forces are at work within the confines of these shores, but inspired and stimulated from without, for the disruption of the great Empire of which we are so justly proud and for which thousands of our countrymen have fought and died. These forces work openly, but more often secretly, in different ways and under different names, all striving ceaselessly for the same object, namely, the overthrow of the British Constitution and the establishment of the Bolshevik regime, misnamed "Workers' Republic," in which the "workers" would actually have no real part—similar to that which has reduced Russia to a welter of anarchy, slavery and ruin, and would have brought about the same condition in Italy but for the heroic determination of her people.
There are numerous organisations and societies in this country, which have as their objective the opposing of Bolshevism and the encouragement of Patriotism. But Bolshevism preaches Civil War, which cannot be suppressed by words alone; you cannot put it down with the weapons of a mere debating society; you must be prepared to back up your words by something more effective when necessary, i.e., Force.

The British Fascists believe that the various Patriotic Organisations, though excellent in their intentions, do not go far enough and are not organised to deal effectively with Revolution. We believe that the only way to accomplish this very necessary end is by inculcating the spirit and principles of Fascism, which alone saved Italy from a Bolshevist Hell.

We, the British Fascists are impressed by the spirit which animated the Fascisti of Italy and enabled them to overcome the Bolshevist menace by sheer force of determination against stupendous odds. This spirit was the realisation that every man owes a duty to his Country, and that that duty is paramount, to be performed regardless of reward. In Italy, this spirit was a fervent Patriotism amounting almost to a religion, and raising its devotees far above considerations of party and creed.

Like all patriots we are becoming increasingly intolerant of sham in affairs of Politics and Government, and of being influenced by mere catch-words and phrases designed simply to attract and hold the mob-vote.

We are unswervingly loyal to His Majesty the King.

We believe in true Patriotism, in the greatness of the British character. The welfare of the Country is of first importance, and we believe that the stronger the British Empire, the better for the world.

We believe that the welfare of Britain depends on the character of its people, and would therefore eradicate those conditions of life which are detrimental to character and consequently to the good of our Country.

We are resolutely opposed to Communism, which is another word for Bolshevism, regarding it as a fraud designed to hoodwink the masses, and reduce them to slavery under alien domination.

We ardently desire to eliminate the very large preponderance of aliens in our midst, who are overcrowding our cities, and are ousting our own people from employment, and we will do everything in our power to accomplish this end. We are opposed to the employment of aliens in Britain so long as there are so many Britons unemployed.

Fascism is essentially law-abiding and constitutional, so long as the Government does not break down. Much of the criticism levelled at Fascism arises from the fact that in Italy it came into power by unconstitutional methods. It should, however, be remembered that constitutional government had entirely broken down in that country before Fascism was born, a fact which its opponents find it convenient to ignore.

History shows that Revolutions have been made by small well-organised minorities. Where these have been immediately countered by well-prepared loyalists the attempt has failed, or more often has not been made.

To this end, in addition to the counter-Revolutionary propaganda we are spreading throughout the Country, we are organising our active members in such a manner that, in the event of Revolution being attempted, they could forthwith be put on such a military basis as is best suited to cope with the attempt.

We have therefore two immediate tasks:

(1). To assist other patriotic organisations and individuals in awakening our fellow countrymen to the danger threatened.
(2). To plant groups of Fascists in every town and village, not only to assist in countering the Communist poison of class-hatred by self-sacrifice and brotherhood, regardless of class, but in the event of attempted Revolution to form rallying points where loyal citizens can find a definite scheme for assisting the Authorities, or for taking action where the Authorities are caught unawares and overpowered.

ENGLAND'S GRAVE DANGER.

The childhood shows the man
As morning shows the day.

Milton.

Every Briton who cares for the future of his country and the Empire should read, and carefully study, the official report of the debate in the House of Lords, on the 3rd July last, on the movement for the second reading of Lord Danesfort's "Seditious and Blasphemous Teaching to Children Bill." He should also peruse, from time to time, one or another—or all—of the seventy publications in this country which are directed towards revolutionary purposes. It is, however, because he will probably do neither, lacking, perhaps, the energy; but, far more likely, the opportunity, that this small pamphlet is written, in the hope that it will, somehow, come into his hands.

Seventy publications in this country directed towards revolutionary purposes! Impossible, one would imagine. But it is true; and of these about twenty-six are purely Communist, and some of them are printed in Germany.

The Communist Party must develop into a militant party organisation, avoiding a fight in the open, but attacking unexpectedly weak spots.

The above is quoted from "The Theses," or Decisions of the Third Congress of the Communist (Third) International.

UNEXPECTEDLY WEAK SPOTS.

They are the hearts and heads of little children—English boys and girls—that the Communists are attacking by stealth to-day; for they know the truth of Milton's words which preface this paper. What the child is, so will the man be. Let them once get the English children and England is theirs.
It is unnecessary, of course, to insist here that the avowed object of the Communists is the breaking up of the British Empire. It is to further this fell intent that thousands of British children are falling week by week under the dreadful influence of these people, and are being taught blasphemy, sedition and class hatred and scorn for the marriage tie; to ridicule religion, to be disloyal to the King and to hate all those who are not of their own way of thinking. But from Moscow such things are ordered, and one may quote from Lenin at this juncture:—

You have made such a mess of the world with your Christian civilisation that cutting down the trees is not sufficient. It is necessary to pull up and destroy the roots to the last trace.

Let everyone realise the extent of Communist activities for a start. They will then be prepared to assimilate some of the astounding and vile details connected with them.

The teaching at which Lord Danesfort’s Bill is aimed is of the regular type of Communist propaganda, common to all Communists in all countries, but intolerable here; teaching which Mr Winston Churchill has anathematised as the vile garbage of atheism and revolution. The Communists couple atheism and revolution because they know that in the destruction of the Christian faith they break down one of the greatest of the barriers standing for law and order. All Communist propaganda is working towards the overthrowing of the existing Constitution and order of things in this country, and the establishment of a revolution on the Russian model. Therefore all religion, especially the Christian religion, is held up to contempt in language of revolting scurrility. Class hatred, the rebel spirit, the subversion of the Constitution and the abolition of the marriage tie are preached. Owners of property are execrated as robbers and Judas Iscariots. Russia is the one bright spot.

And little children are being taught to lisp all this in so-called Sunday Schools, held in private houses and elsewhere, in many parts of the kingdom.

In one of those papers specially prepared and published for children these words will be found:—

"Capitalism must be destroyed at all costs, even if it means the use of force. Force means hatred. We preach the gospel of hatred."

At this point it will be useful to quote Lord Danesfort’s own words in the House of Lords on the 3rd of July last. After stating that active and pestilent propaganda against British institutions, British influence and the British Empire had been going on for years, he continued:—""The propaganda amongst children arose in this way, and the facts that I am going to put forward are quoted, in substance, from the Communists' own publications. . . . . . . Soon after the establishment of the Communist International in March, 1918, it was recognised by the promoters of that movement that the conversion of youth to their tenets was useful and, indeed, necessary, as an accompaniment of the general Communist movement. Accordingly a Young Communist International was established, and it declared itself to be a militant union of all revolutionary young organisations. That body held its first congress in Berlin in November, 1919. It issued a manifesto to the proletariat youth of all nations. That manifesto was published in Great Britain in English, and was published also in many other countries. It advocated the complete subversion of the existing order of things, and for that purpose 'the use of every instrument of revolutionary class warfare, including armed resistance.'

This to English Children in Twentieth Century England!

To carry the story forward: There was a second congress of the Young Communist International, held in Germany in April, 1921. At it the members were urged to prepare for the civil war, and not only to disorganise the armed forces of the capitalist States, but to organise the proletariat forces for military purposes.

Then it was that Young Communist Leagues were established in this country; and then it was that Communist Sunday Schools were set up here. (They must not be confused with Socialist Sunday Schools, which have been known in Great Britain for very many years, and which are without the scope of this paper.) A very large and extensive literature is published and distributed among the children in these Communist Schools, while oral teaching is given on similar lines. The literature includes weekly and monthly papers, song-books and all sorts of pamphlets.

Soon after the establishment of the Communist International, in March, 1918, a pamphlet was published in Glasgow entitled:—"How to conduct a Proletarian School." The following are extracts from it:—

"To teach the children the ideal of the revolution should be the primary object of a Socialist Sunday School. All other teaching is of no avail."

"A boy and girl should be learned (sic) a real live, red-hot revolutionary speech to take about ten minutes."
"Our work is to train the children of the working class to accomplish the revolution."

In Glasgow, again, in the year 1921, was published a pamphlet, "Ten Proletarian Maxims." Here are two of them:

"Thou shalt not be a patriot, for a patriot is an international blackleg."

"Thou shalt teach revolution, for revolution means the abolition of the present political state and the end of capitalism and raising in their place an industrial republic."

A verbal explanation of a patriot was given in a London Communist School in April, 1922, by the teacher, in these words:

"What is a patriot? A soldier, a sailor, a policeman, a boy scout, a girl guide. Never you become any of them. They dress you in fine uniform and stuff you with tales of patriotism, and of soldiers—soldiers are trained to murder men of their own class. We were made to murder poor, peaceful Germans we had no grudge against."

A particularly disgusting and offensive paper called Proletcult, "a magazine for boys and girls," delights in the foulest blasphemies. The following, for example, appeared in its October, 1923, issue, in the form of a catechism:

"Did Jesus come from heaven?—No."

"Was his mother a Virgin?—No."

"Is the story about him true?—No."

"Who was his father?—Joseph, just in the ordinary way."

"Thus the story is a legend?—Of that there is no doubt."

And from another children's magazine, published in January of this year:

"A little child shall lead them." Lead whom? Why, lead the capitalist to slaughter."

"What child? Why the child of the workers, who belongs to the children's section of the Young Communists' League."

In the pamphlet already referred to: "How to conduct a Proletarian School," are examples of atrocious blasphemy one shrinks from setting down on paper. Yet it is positively necessary if a publication like this is to achieve its object, that some idea be given of their character. In that pamphlet one finds these words:

"Christ on the Cross dying for sinners is so ridiculous that one despairs at the hold this superstition has on the minds of the working-class."

Details of the sexual teaching which the children receive in many of these schools is unprintable.
There is a book of proletarian "poems," entitled "A Child's Reading," published in Glasgow in 1922. This is a sample of its contents:—

"This yelling and shouting
About God and King
Is only thimble ringing,
Like singing of a hymn;
We want not their glory
Nor their fiery hell;
All we want we mean to take,
And that's why 'Fat's' unwell."

It may be unnecessary to explain that "Fat." is the recognised description of the employer of labour in this class of literature.

A very illuminating example of how the "Red" lotion is rubbed into these poor children was noticed at a Communist School at Southwark, in London, on April 22nd, 1922. Three copies of a poster were pasted up in the room. They were headed Communist, and were presumably the offspring of the well-known weekly paper of that name. The only message they brought to the youngsters was contained in the four words:—

"Fight Damn it, Fight!"

Little purpose were served in piling up examples of the kind already instanced here. The true significance of the whole business may be read in the actual words of the founders themselves of this Young Communist Movement. They say:—

"Boys and girls are not so afraid of anything of a revolutionary nature as grown-up people. It is ten times as easy to make a convert of fifteen as a convert of fifty."

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings hath thou ordained strength because of thine enemies.

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings they would ordain Destruction.

We can take our choice.

What are loyal English men and women going to do about it?

THE EXTENT OF THE MOVEMENT

Readers will very naturally ask what is the extent of this movement. It is difficult to say, but the only danger lies in under-estimation. Lord Danesfort, in the House of Lords, suggested there were some fifteen Communist Sunday Schools in London, attended by anything from thirty to fifty, and fifty to a hundred, children each. He believed there were something like twenty-five similar schools in Glasgow and other parts of the country. There would be all approved Communist schools. To some of the many Socialist Schools Communist extremists are, from time to time, invited, for the purpose of giving instruction on their own lines. These Socialist Schools have recently been converted into Communist Schools. At the majority of Socialist Schools in this country, however, nothing illegal would seem to be taught.

WHAT THE BILL WOULD DO

No new offence is created by Lord Darnley's Bill, which has now passed its Third Reading in the House of Lords. Should it pass through the Commons and become law the change will be one of procedure only. Sedition and Blasphemy prosecutions are to-day carried through by the very common, costly and tedious method of indictment and a trial at the Criminal Court. Few people care to go to the trouble and expense involved, and, as a consequence, the sedition-monger and blasphemer have a pretty fair field. This Bill provides that these offences shall be tried before a magistrate, with an appeal to Quarter Sessions, the defendant having a right to a trial by jury if he so desires it.

It behoves all readers of this pamphlet to do what they can to smooth the way for the Bill when it shall reach the House of Commons.

They may help by public speaking in its favour; by writing to their Members on the matter, and to the newspapers, and by advertising the need for the measure at all times and in every possible way.

All these things they can do the more easily if they join the British Fascist and work heartily towards its ends.

"Taking off the Gloves"

"To everything there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven . . . a time to keep silence, and a time to speak . . . . a time of war, and a time of peace."—Ecl. III.

The time to speak, and the time of war is now upon us. In opposing Bolshevism and subsidised Socialist-Communists we British Fascists are fighting no clean, no honourable enemy.

The attitude that we have to deal with a misguided yet idealistic and chivalrous foe is utterly misleading and false.

Doubtless there are some shallow-brained individuals who believe in Bolshevism, in like manner as there are certain unfortunate inmates of asylums who believe, and stoutly maintain, that they are fashioned out of glass; but these weak-minded Communist brethren are of little account, they are indeed but the pawns in a singularly malodorous game. The actual Bolshevik or Communist leaders, the 'Intelligentsia,' the hired agitators, these comprise as offensive a collection of miscalled 'humanity' as any modern degenerate would wish to associate with.
Be it remembered that we have to deal with 'men' of whom some can see no shame in the acceptance of foreign wages for the sole purpose of undermining and of bringing about the downfall of the British Empire, of whom others recognise the shame, but yet have callously bartered their manhood and their Country for Soviet Gold.

We have to deal with 'men' incapable of appreciating their deadly soul-scorching guilt, in having deliberately restricted the output and supply of counter-battery shells in the last war, thereby incurring the death of thousands of their countrymen, who, but for them, would be alive today;—with men and women who can teach young children that Religion, Chivalry, love of Home and of Country, that Duty and Decency are but mere frauds and shams, and that the words Honour and Dishonour have no meaning. I contend that such persons have as little title to be recognised as honourable opponents as, say, a sewer-rat has, to be termed a gentleman.

We Fascists have deliberately enrolled ourselves on the side of Loyalty and Christianity even as our opponents have enlisted on the side of sedition and Bolshevist degeneracy, which is itself anti-Christianity; and we call upon all loyal men and women who prefer truth to humbug to follow our example. Either we or our opponents must go under, but we have Right and the spirit to conquer on our side, therefore we shall win.

We can have no conciliatory Policy. We did not defeat the Germans by having too tender a regard for their feelings or their skins, nor shall we defeat our opponents by fighting in kid gloves. Let us attack and go on attacking the Bolshevist enemies of our Empire by every means and by every device in our power. We can only win by hitting and by hitting hard.

The 'men' who skulked at home in order to filch their comrades' jobs, who slunk into factories in order to get inflated pay, and to spread sedition; and in order to save their miserable hides;—and who now preach universal class and civil war:—these should have their records exposed and expounded on every possible occasion, at street corner meetings, by door to door propaganda, by the distribution of typed leaflets and handbills in the factories, the workshops, the streets, and at all 'labour' and communist meetings. The biographies of many of the prominent 'sedition leaders' may be obtained at 2, Whitefriars St., London, E.C.4.—The Boswell Publishing Co.

Let us discredit these fulsome gentry by spreading the Truth.

If we hurt their feelings, if we do them harm, so much the better for Great Britain. Let us continue daily and hourly until we have raised a feeling against them, so hostile and so bitter, that the country they have sought to defile becomes too hot to hold them.

How much longer are we to suffer Sedition, Crime, Cowardice, Blasphemy and Treachery under the transparent guise of 'Broad-minded Tolerance' and of 'New Thought'?

Broad minded Tolerance as often as not is but the excuse and camouflage of moral cowardice. Tolerance of evil is connivance at evil.

‘Christian’ clergy who pander to, and hob-nob with avowed atheistical sedition-mongers are nothing less than traitors to the Religion and Master they have vowed, and profess, to serve.

The men who dope and mislead their fellow-workers and countrymen by deliberately spreading the poison of Bolshevistic Thought and Socialist Communism, are every bit as great a danger to the Country as the vermin which, insignificant and contemptible enough in itself, acts as the carrier and distributor of plague and disease germs in overcrowded areas.

We have but one course open to us, and but one choice. Right is on the one side, Wrong upon the other. We can but choose the former. We cannot fraternize or philander with Sin, the wages of which is Death.

Let us once and for all cast aside the cloak of easy-going tolerance of the intolerable; of evil and of these workers of evil:—let us take off our gloves, and get busy.

POLICY.

1. The upholding of His Majesty, the King, his heirs and successors, the present Constitution, the British Empire, and the Christian Religion.

2. The promotion of Class Friendship.

3. The improvement of present social conditions.

4. Practical protection, including legal advice, for all loyal patriotic citizens and workers, against all forms of aggression, sweating, Trades Union tyranny, Profiteering and Money Lending.

5. Fullest encouragement towards inter-Empire Trade, expansion and prosperity.

7. The development of agriculture and afforestation in Great Britain and Ireland.

PRACTICE.

1. By providing a loyal body of citizens, well disciplined and efficient to uphold His Majesty the King and the Authorities in the event of a National crisis.

   By unswerving loyalty to the pledge taken on becoming a British Fascist.

2. By individual efforts on the part of every British Fascist.

3. By the election of British Fascists to Municipal Councils, Boards of Guardians, and other Public Bodies to insist that while there is the strictest economy in the expenditure of Public Funds, that such expenditure be applied so as to obtain the greatest possible benefit for the Community as a whole.

4. By submission of such cases to the legal advisers of the G.H.Q. Council with a further view to the establishment of a British Fascist Insurance Scheme in the immediate future.

5. By demanding and purchasing only British Empire Goods, encouraging Home Industries and the Employment of British Labour only.

6. Preference to be given to the employment of Ex-Service men, other things, including efficiency, being equal. The entire exclusion from all public positions of conscientious objectors.

7. By the encouraging of small holdings with a view to future possession by tenants, and the organising of schemes for the collection and distribution of produce locally.

   Utilising the services of the unemployed for reafforestation to make good the de-
POLICY.

8. The gradual abolition of the Dole, as at present administered.

10. An intensive propaganda against, and efficacious hostility towards, all Bolshevik, Communist, Socialist and other subversive and anti-Christian movements; to be continued until such time as the Empire is purged of all seditious and disloyalists.

11. Drastic re-organisation of public bodies, including the Civil Service.

PRACTICE.

8. By the substitution of a fair return of work for relief received.

9. By imposing a tax on all aliens entering the Country with a view to residence.

(b) By setting up an efficient Alien Immigration Tribunal to examine aliens as to general desirability.

(c) By withdrawing Trade Licences, granted to aliens in business in the country, in the case of abuse of their privileges.

10. (a) By the creation of Fascist Units in factories to combat the existing Communist cells.

(b) By exposure of Red leaders.

(c) By total abolition of Red Sunday Schools and the establishment of Fascist Children’s Clubs.

(d) By boycotting all business concerns known to be under the influence of Communists.

(e) By supporting the Secret Ballot.

(f) By supporting non-political Trades Unions.

(g) By street corner and dinner hour meetings and other general activities to awaken the apathetic public to existing dangers.

11. By bringing pressure to bear on local members of Parliament to exclude all those not of British birth and parentage from holding any public position, and the insisting on the taking of the Oath of Allegiance by all persons in the receipt of public remuneration.
What Is Fascism?

Fascism is militant Christianity.
Fascism is a force working for good comradeship, sympathy, mutual aid and loyalty, amongst all classes.
Fascism is therefore the avowed opponent of Bolshevism, Communism, and atheistical Socialism, the adherents of which preach the morbid doctrines of class hatred, unrest, and destruction.

Communism is international, adapting its methods to suit its surroundings, its chief form of propaganda as shown in Russia, in the Balkans, and, in the first few years after the war, in Italy, is murder. In our country it takes the form of sedition, corruption of morals, the fostering of bitterness and atheism.

Fascism is also international. The British interpretation differs from the Italian in the same degree as the Italian and British mentalities differ. But the principles of honour, goodwill to all men, self-sacrifice, class-friendship and loyalty, are common to both.

The Communists in Great Britain seek to disrupt the various classes, to sow the seeds of dissention, malice, and civil strife, amongst their own countrymen for the alleged benefit of one class; although they are well aware that wherever Bolshevism or Socialism have been tried, the result has invariably been the universal degradation of all classes.

Italian Fascism is still maligned in this country, by people who prefer sentimental unreallities to hard concrete facts.

We British Fascists realise and admire the wonderful spirit of patriotic devotion which enabled our Italian Allies of the last war eventually to save their country from the horrors of a Red Revolution—though not before thousands of loyal Italian ex-service men had been murdered by the socialists and communists.

We will not tolerate Bolshevism in this country.

Thousands of our ex-service men who have bitterly regretted the apparent disappearance of that wonderful spirit of good fellowship and good comradeship, so prevalent amongst all ranks and classes of men, between 1914 and 1918, have found that this spirit has not died, it is the spirit of British Fascism.

We Fascists are not concerned with party politics. Our motto is, “Be Loyal.”

We wish every Fascist to be loyal to his or her own political opinions and religion, to our Crown and our Empire.

The present constitutional government will not last for ever. The fate of our Crown and Empire in the hands of a disloyal government is obvious. But British Fascism has spread to the colonies, and where Fascism thrives, sedition and communism die.

Remember, Fascism stands for the unselfish co-operation of all classes for the common weal.

COMMUNISM UNMASKED.

Under the above title there appeared six articles in the Morning Post from the 4th to the 9th February, 1924, which quote from the Decisions of the Third Congress, of the Communist (Third) International, referred to subsequently as "The Theses," the influence of which is unmistakable in all recent Communist pamphlets.

It was sent to England via Germany (from Moscow) in 1921, where under threat of stoppage of funds it was adopted at the Battersea Conference.

The effect was instantaneous. Intelligent organisers were imported from abroad, and the activities of the party enormously increased in England.

The book is secret, great precautions were taken to prevent copies "straying." It was only issued to the hierarchy. Only one copy has "strayed" so far. The above articles quote from it and draw conclusions. The following extract from the The Workers' Weekly of April 25th is illuminating:

"Indications of an intimate association between the Morning Post and the political secret service have long been evident to observant people. About the Communist Party this newspaper is generally fully, if very often inaccurately informed. Thus it published long extracts from the Party Commission's report, which was privately circulated to Party members only, but of which Scotland Yard had obtained one copy. Now, however, since the publication of the Bedford Street documents, there is no longer a mere suspicion that the Special Branch provides reports for the Morning Post; the evidence is plain to see."

It imposes an underground campaign amongst extremists to cause mutiny in Trades Unions and upset the authority of their leaders, and to prevent binding agreements between Labour and Capital.
It preaches "the aggravation of social antagonism and social struggles and the transition to open civil war."

"The unemployed must be transformed from a mere reserve army of industry into an active army of Revolution."

Moscow is preparing to supply its most capable organisers and provide funds for the campaign in England.

The pamphlets published by the Communist Party of Great Britain and on sale at 16, King Street, Covent Garden, all to be had for a few pence, and many other similar publications, substantiate this and show that considerable funds must be behind the movement.

"Every factory and each mill should become a citadel of revolution."

"By Direct Action we mean all forms of direct pressure of the workers upon the employers and the State; boycott, strike, street demonstrations, seizure of factories, uprisings and other revolutionary activity which tend to unite the working class in the fight for Socialism."

"There must be organised special detachments for the struggle against scabbing and for counteraction, as well as the provocative movement on the part of the white guard organisations encouraged by the bourgeoisie and the Government. The organisation of a special strike militia and special defence detachments is a matter of life and death to the workers."

Supplies to factories must be stopped—"and the Union of Transport Workers ought to play a specially prominent part in this case."

"It is the duty of the Communists to create their own Labour Legions and militant organisations which will teach the 'golden youth' of the bourgeoisie a wholesome lesson."

"The Communist Party must develop into a militant organisation, avoiding a fight in the open but attacking unexpectedly weak spots."

Underground activities, utilising possibilities offered by the legal Labour Movement as camouflage while the intensive party becomes "the organiser and real leader of the great revolutionary masses"; the establishment of a Secret Service and military intelligence department are all prescribed, while a most careful and insidious propaganda must be instilled in the Navy and Army to sap discipline and undermine the authority of the officers.

Most significant of all is to be the encouragement of rifle clubs "for the purpose of giving the workers military training in the revolutionary battles to come."
Communists aim at complete domination over Trades Unions by subtle infiltration. "Nuclei" are to be introduced into every Union. The present Leaders are classed as reactionaries against whom persuasion would be useless. They must be deprived of their following. Communists "must be told that it is necessary to revolutionise the Trades Unions, to expel the spirit of treacherous reformist leaders, and thus convert the Trades Unions into a real support of the revolutionary proletariat."

Corroboration of the above.

The newspapers of May 20th, 1924 quote the following resolution passed at the Communist Congress at Manchester on the 19th:

"The Communist Party will not content itself with a Peace programme, with speeches and leaflets in its exposure of the Labour Government in the eyes of the workers."

Even Labour Leaders themselves are surprised at the sudden increase of numbers of extremists in their ranks, eight-fold at least in two years. This is one of the direct results of the Battersea Conference.

Communists must aim at the "one co-ordinate struggle, as against the Trades Union Bureaucracy and the Socialist Party who would oppose such a united organised struggle."

Everything is to be done to remove Trade Union activity from the economic to the militant political standpoint.

Till recently the Communists were shut out from Labour, but Moscow's orders for their re-admission were peremptory and were obeyed.

The extremists are now within the Labour fold, and form the nucleus of the Red Army of the future.

The "Theses" shows throughout a strong German influence. When the Proletarian Revolution has succeeded the union of Germany and Russia is to be consummated, and the break-up of the British Empire aimed at. That object is to be attained by preparation of the ground, thanks to a flood of doctrines, many of them innocuous, to conceal the hidden poison which is to sap the vitality of the Empire.

Women are to be tempted by the bait of emancipation the present God-fearing housewife being a danger to the Revolution. Communal housekeeping is to be advocated, and women are to be incited by mass demonstrations against high cost of living, bad housing, unemployment and other revolutionary forms of class war. Communist women are to learn "First Aid" so as to gain a reputation for mercy in their own districts.
So much for the "Theses." Its effect is clearly seen in the programme approved at the Communist Congress at Manchester on May 19th, 1924 and which is to be submitted to the next Congress of the Communist International.

It set forth the following as the necessary fundamental economical and political measures:

"Nationalisation of land, mines, railways, communications, transport, engineering, shipping, cotton, and woollen industries, and the banks without compensation; disarming of the bourgeoisie, the arming of the proletariat, and the creation of a proletarian Army, Navy and Civil Guard; abolition of capitalist law courts and the establishment of workers' tribunals; State monopoly of foreign trade and of the Press; annulment of State debts, with an allowance to small investors; confiscation of all fortunes over £5000; nationalisation of all property except that owned by small tenants, and rents to be paid to the State; abolition of the Monarchy and all hereditary titles; liberation of the Colonies held in military and political subjection; repudiation of the Versailles Treaty and the cancelling of War debts and reparations; universal simultaneous disarmament."

The programme added that the Communist Party regards the maintenance of the British Empire as an act of deadly enmity to the workers of this country and of the world, and demands the full political and industrial freedom of India, Egypt, and the British Protectorates.

As for the Proletariat, its future is given away in a specious pamphlet by Kameneff, which lays it down that as soon as the first blow for the Revolution has been struck "the power of command and compulsion must lie in the hands of a definite organisation," i.e., in that of the "general staff" of the Proletariat.

In other words, the small band who have engineered the upheaval are to get supreme authority over the lives and liberties of the masses, as indeed happened in Russia, where the workers have been enslaved. How long will the British working men be duped in this way, and aid a pack of aliens to reduce them to servitude?
